

Umoja Voices — User Guide

This guide walks through everything the app can do today, as it actually behaves — screenshots throughout are from a live session against a non-production demo account, never real member data. Chorister-facing features come first; admin-only features (marked Admin) follow.

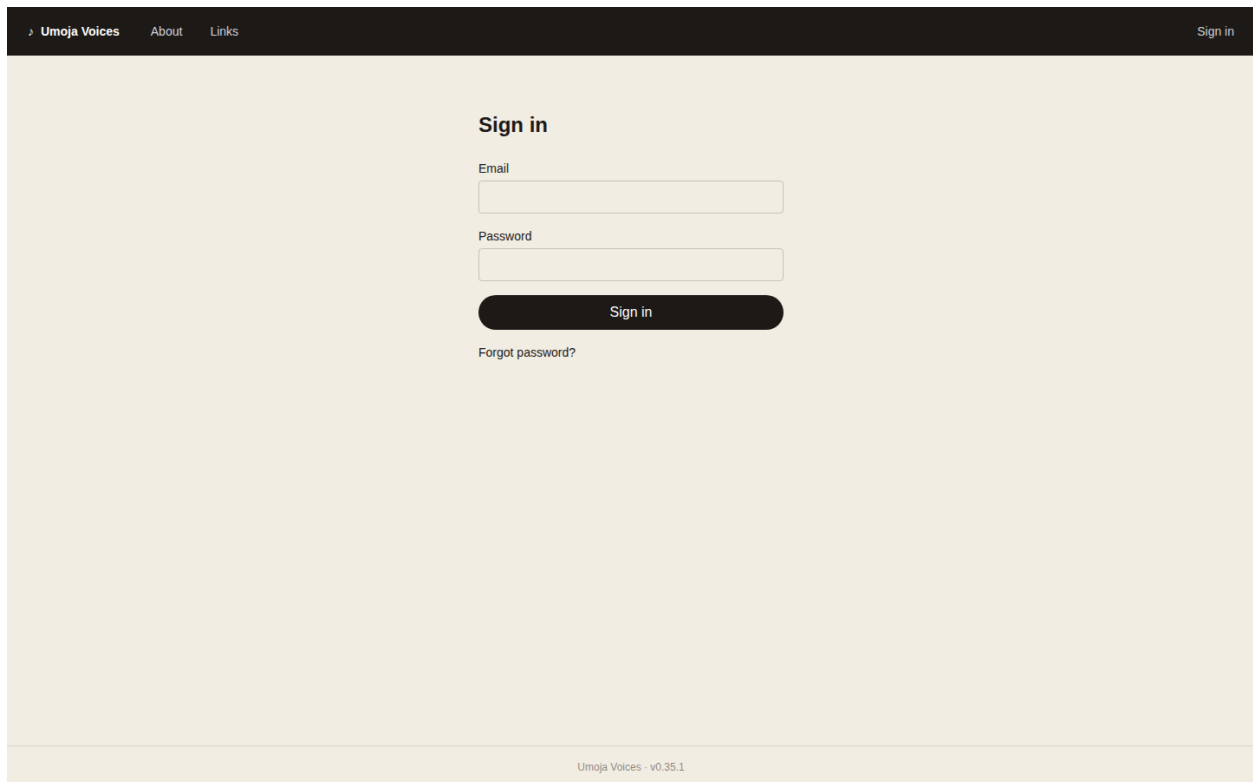

If something described here looks slightly different from what you see, the app may have moved on since this guide was last updated — the footer at the bottom of every page shows the running version.

Getting started

Receiving an invite and setting a password

New members are added by an admin (see "Managing members" under the admin section below), never by signing up directly — there's no public registration page. An admin invites you by email and shares a one-time invite link with you directly (by WhatsApp, etc. — the app doesn't send email itself yet). Opening that link lets you set your own password and signs you in.

Click Forgot password? from the sign-in page and enter your email. Self-service email delivery for this flow isn't wired up yet, so in practice an admin generates you a reset link directly (see "Managing members" below) the same way an invite link works.

For choristers

Browsing the song library

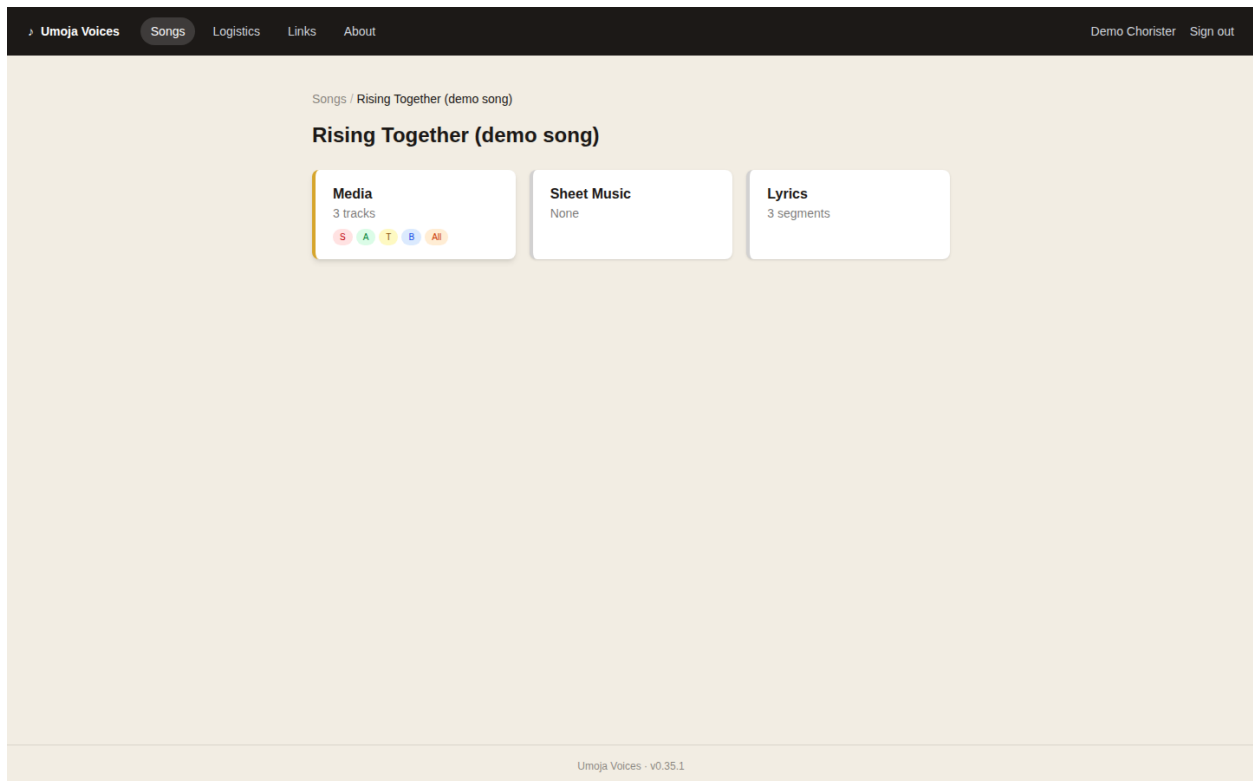

Song library

Songs in the top navigation lists every song in the library. Click any song to open it.

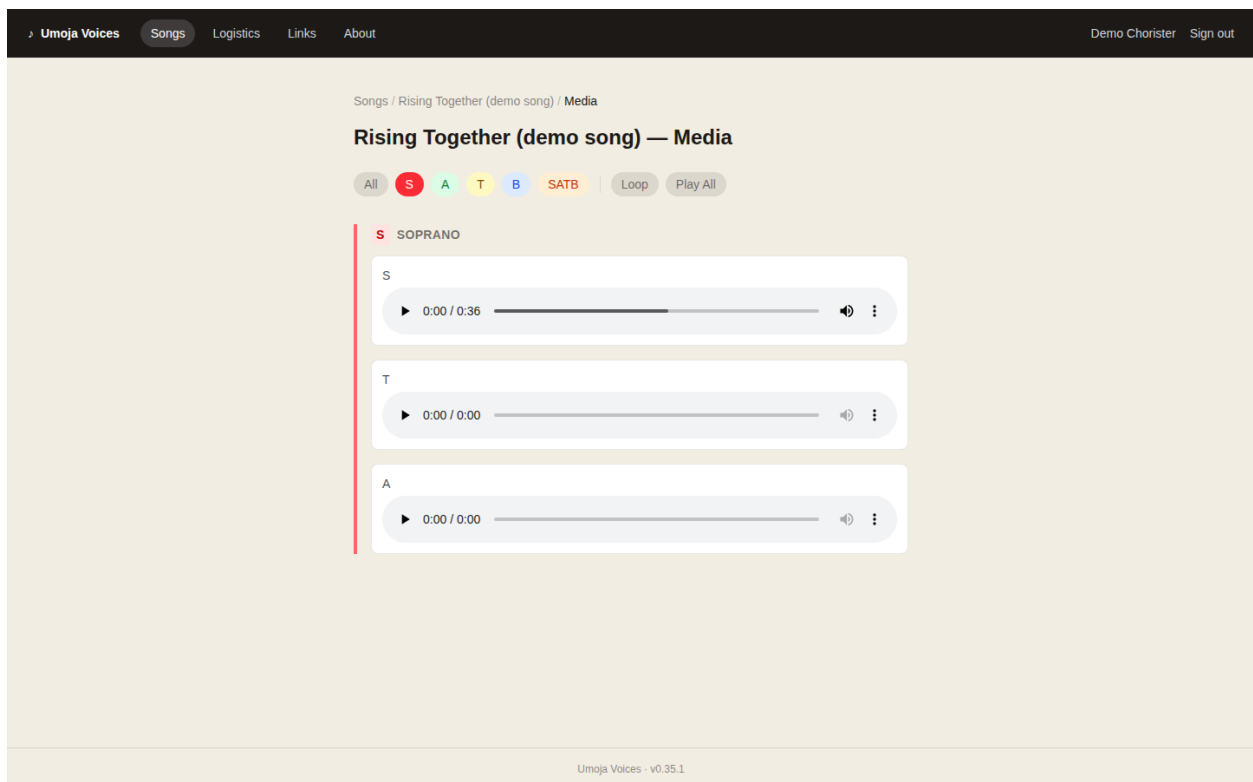

A song's Media, Sheet Music, and Lyrics

Each song has three sub-pages, linked from its detail page:

Song detail page

Media groups audio/video tracks by voice part, with a filter bar (S / A / T / B / All / SATB) to narrow the list to just your part:

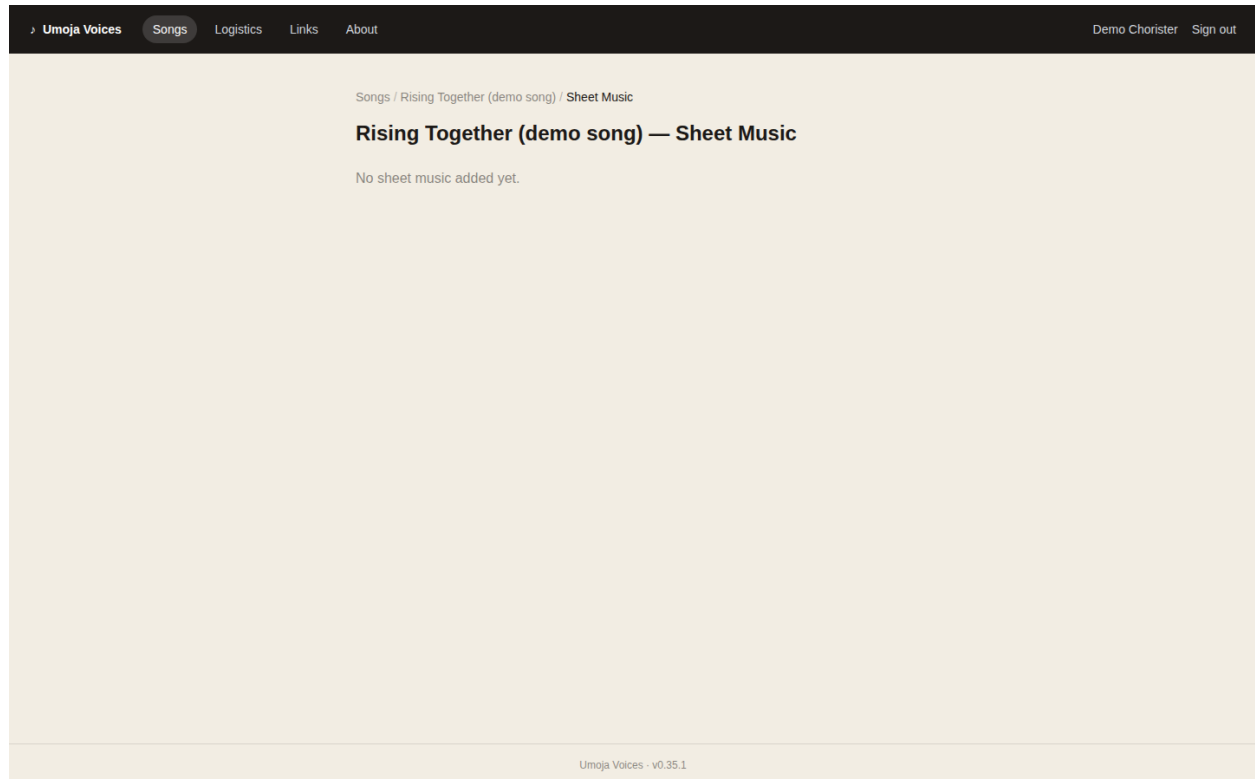

Media filtered to Soprano

Two playback toggles sit next to the filter:

- Loop — replays the currently visible tracks in order instead of stopping after the last one.
- Play All — auto-advances to the next visible track as each one finishes; turning it off stops the auto-advance without interrupting whatever is currently playing.

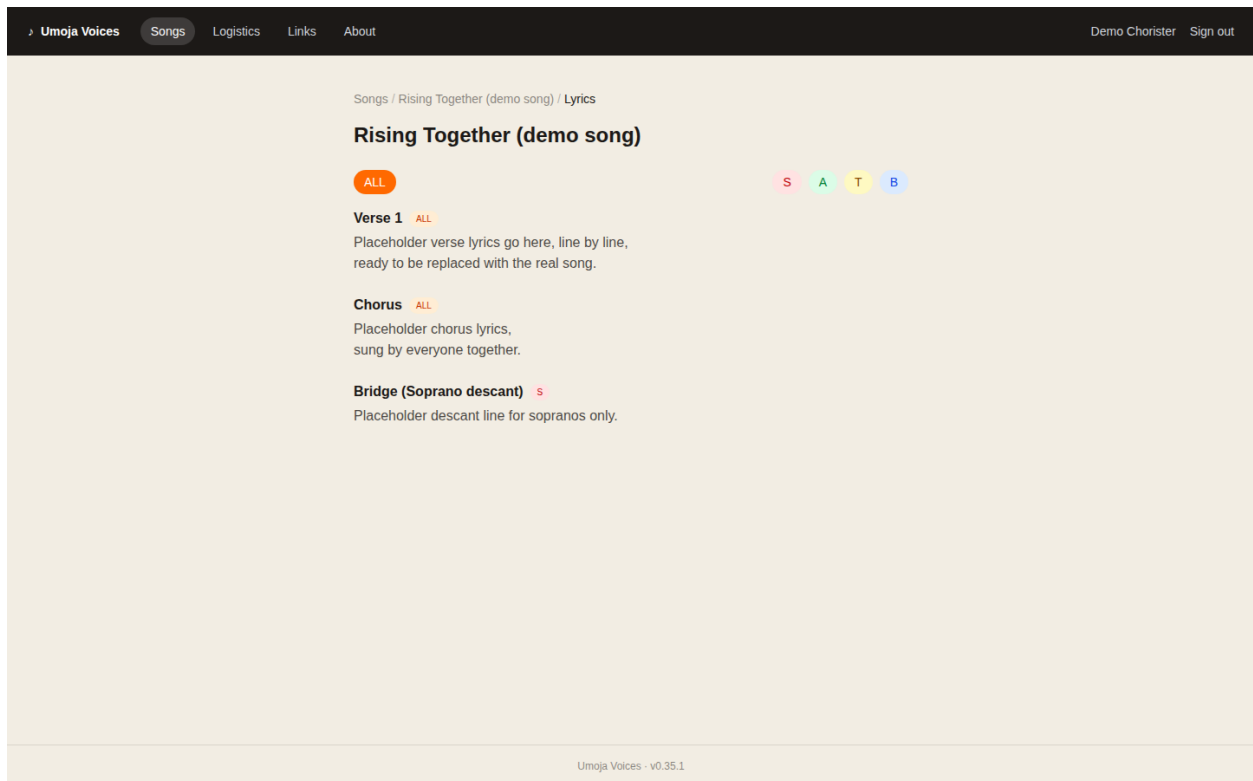

Both toggles apply only to whatever the active filter shows, so switching to S and turning on Play All loops just the soprano part.

Sheet Music shows any scanned/uploaded sheet music for the song (shown here with none added yet):

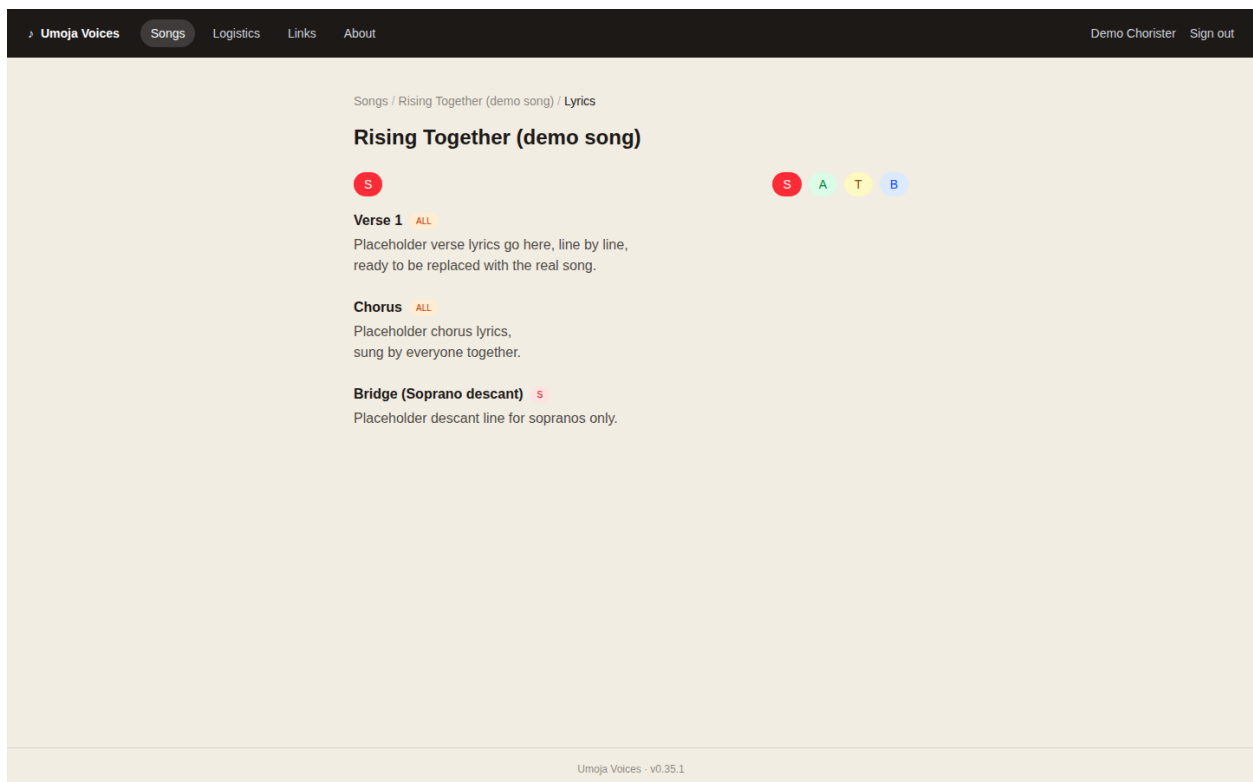

Sheet music page

Lyrics shows the song's lyrics broken into labeled segments (verse, chorus, bridge, etc.), each tagged with which voice part(s) sing it:

Lyrics page

The same S / A / T / B / All filter bar narrows the lyrics shown to just your part — useful for a bridge or descant line that only one voice part sings:

Logistics page

Logistics shows the current performance trip: destination and dates, key deadlines (visa, tickets, etc.), the day-by-day itinerary, and the upcoming practice schedule. There's currently only ever one active trip shown here.

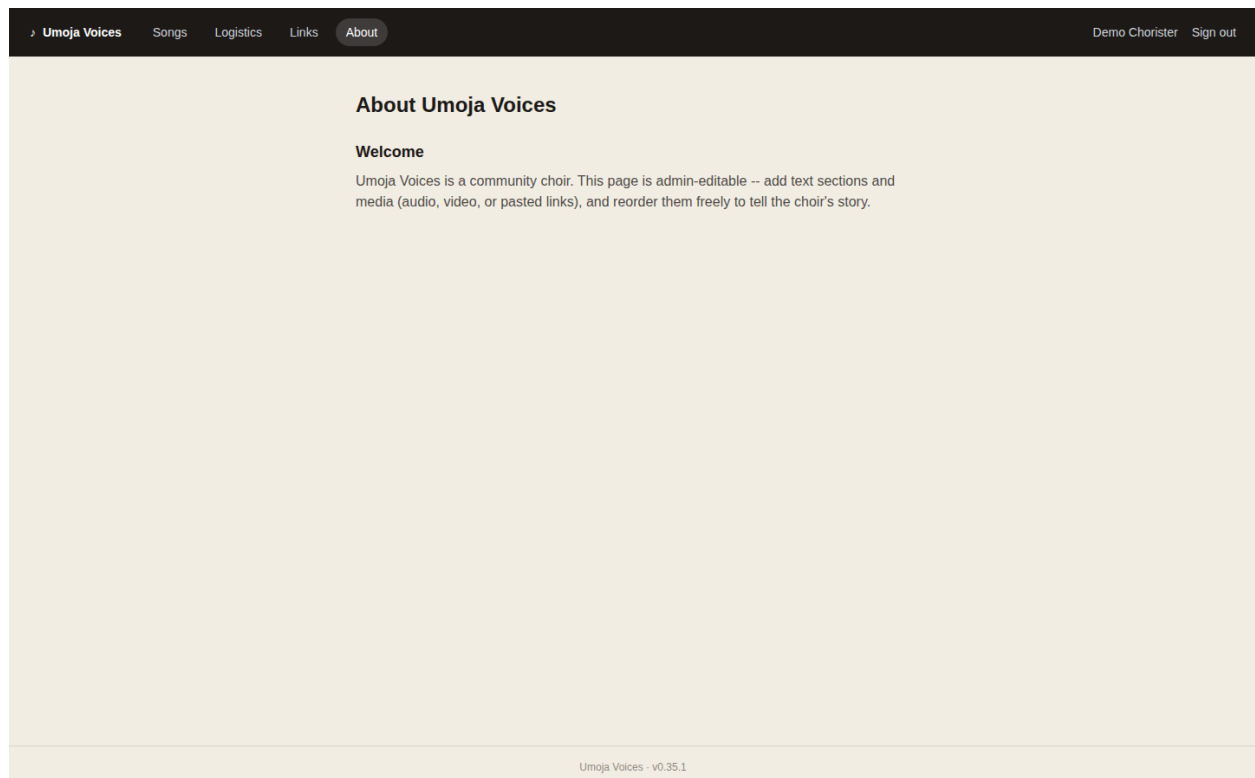

External Links

Links is a simple public directory of the choir's external links (social media, etc.), grouped by category.

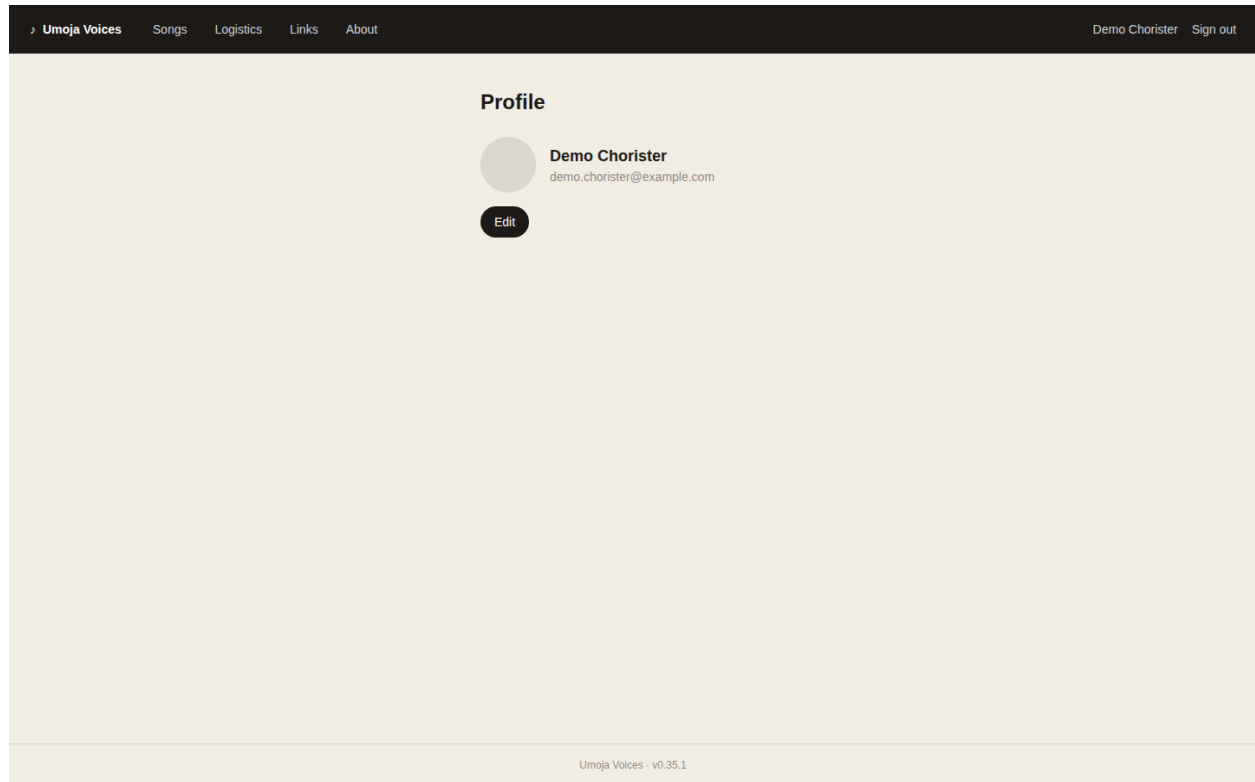

About

About page

About is a free-form page an admin maintains — a mix of text sections and media (audio, video, or embedded links), shown in whatever order the admin has arranged them in.

Your Profile

Profile page

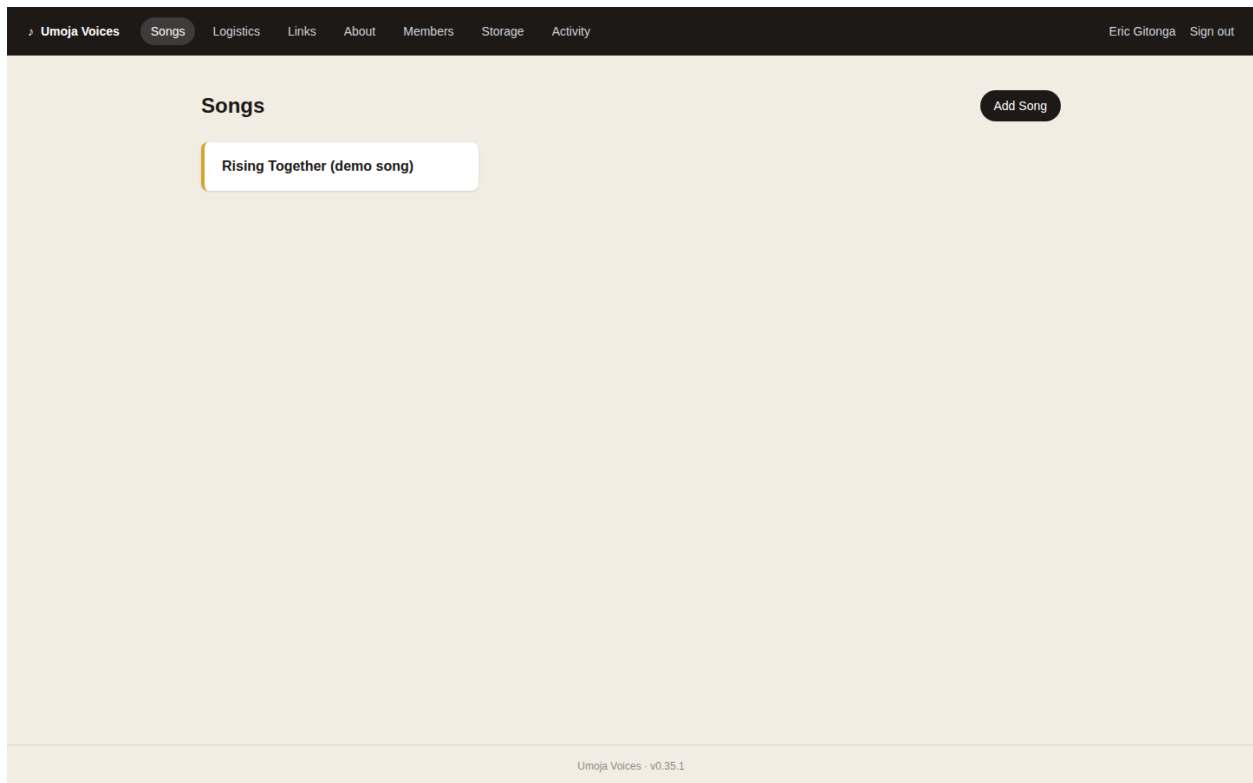

Click your name in the top-right corner, or go to Profile, to see and edit your own account: bio, voice part, instrument, phone number, and photo. Click Edit to change any of these.

For admins

Everything above works the same way for an admin account, plus the following admin-only capabilities. Admin-only links (Members, Storage, Activity, plus Add Song/Edit buttons) only appear in the navigation and on pages when you're signed in as an admin.

Adding, editing, and deleting songs

From the song library, an admin sees an Add Song button:

Song library as admin, with Add Song which opens a short form for the title and credits (writer, composer, arranger):

The screenshot shows a 'New song' form within the same web application. The navigation bar is identical to the previous screenshot. The main content area is titled 'New song'. It contains four input fields, each with a label above it: 'Title', 'Writer', 'Composer', and 'Arranger'. Below these fields is a dark button labeled 'Create and continue'. The footer at the bottom of the page again shows 'Umoja Voices - v0.35.1'.

New song form

Opening any song as an admin adds Edit and Delete buttons next to its title. Edit goes to the song's admin editor, where media and sheet music are added:

Song editor — Add Media

Adding media: the Add Media form toggles between Paste URL (for a YouTube, Spotify, Google Drive, or other direct link) and Upload file (for a file hosted directly by the app, subject to the per-file size caps shown on the "Storage usage" page below).

Adding sheet music works the same way, further down the same editor page.

Replacing lyrics: from a song's Lyrics page, an admin sees an Edit link, which opens a dedicated paste-and-parse editor:

Paste (or directly edit) plain text — blank lines separate segments, optional [S]/[A]/[T]/[B]/[ALL] tags mark which voice part a segment belongs to, and a line on its own names the segment (e.g. "Verse 1", "Chorus"). Click Preview to see how it will parse before saving:

This same box is also how you edit lyrics that already exist — it's pre-filled with the song's current lyrics in the same pasteable format, so there's no separate "manual" editor: reopening it after lyrics exist just re-parses whatever you leave in the box, and the save button reads Replace Lyrics instead of Save.

About page editor

From About, admins get an Edit About page link. Text sections and media share a single ordering, so a video or recording can be dropped in between two paragraphs — each existing item has Edit/Delete plus ↑/↓ buttons to move it up or down in that shared order. Below the existing content, separate forms add a new text section or new media (again choosing between Paste URL and Upload file).

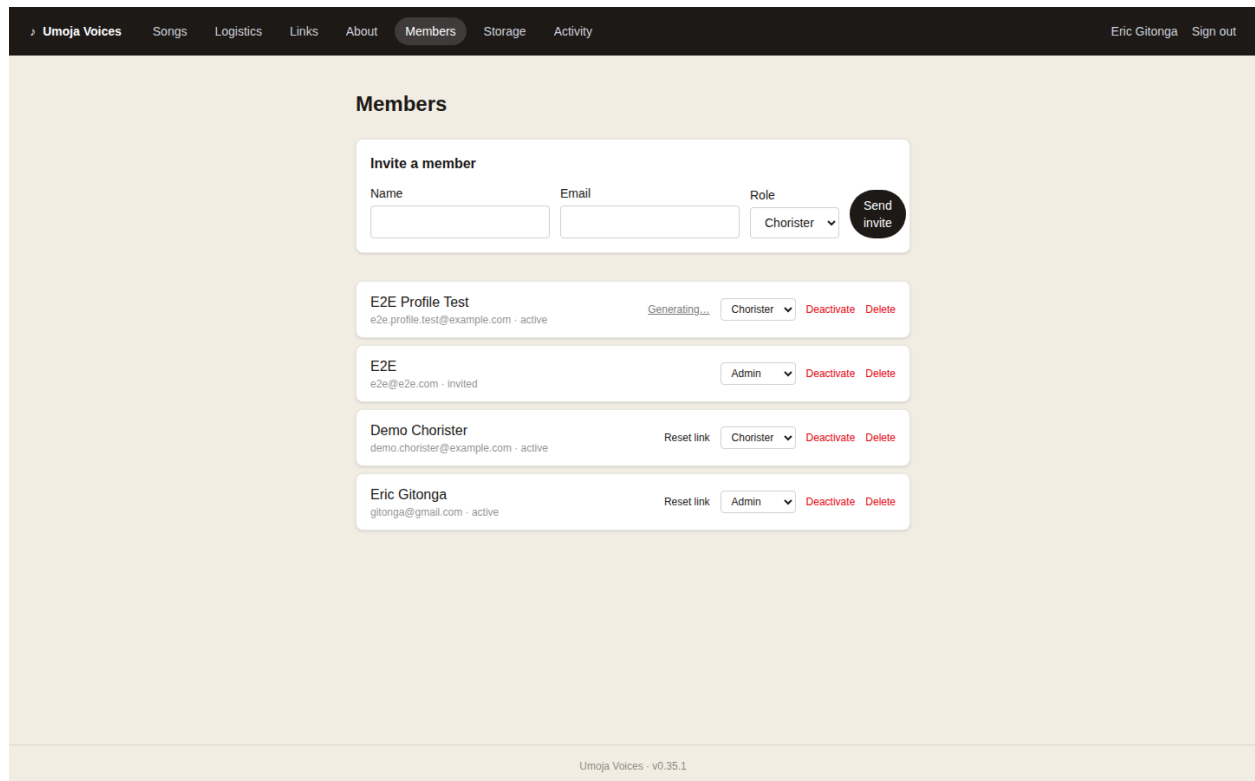

Managing members

Members lists every account. The Invite a member form at the top sends an invite (name, email, role) and displays the resulting one-time invite link on-screen to share manually — the app doesn't send email itself yet.

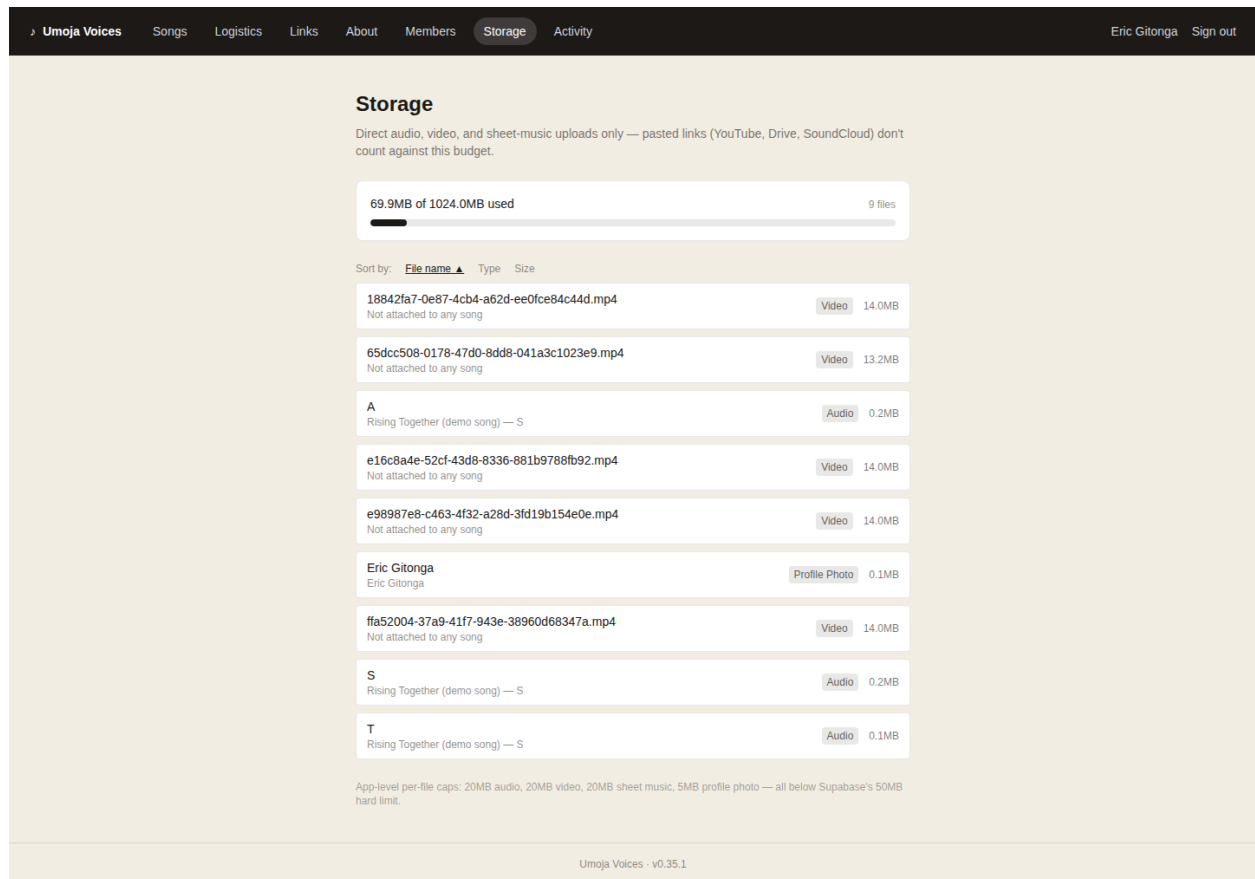

Each existing member's row also has a role dropdown (chorister/admin), Deactivate/ Reactivate, Delete, and Reset link — which generates a one-time password-reset link to share with that person directly, shown inline once generated:

Reset link generated

An admin can't demote or deactivate their own account, and the app always keeps at least one active admin — both are blocked outright rather than left to admin discretion, so there's no way to lock yourself out of the app entirely.

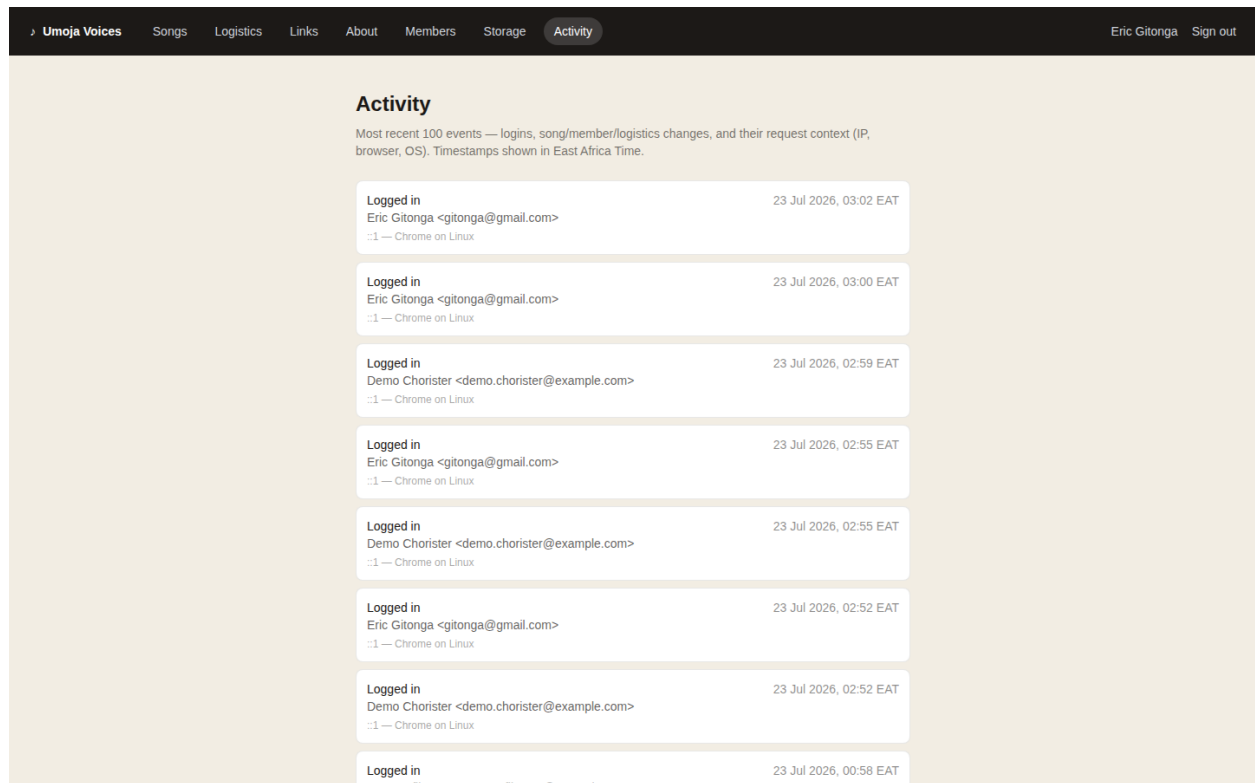

Storage usage

Storage page

Storage shows how much of the app's upload budget is in use, and lists every uploaded file (audio, video, sheet music, profile photos) with its size and what it's attached to, if anything. Pasted links (YouTube, Drive, SoundCloud, etc.) never count against this — only direct uploads do. Per-file size caps (shown at the bottom of the page) apply separately to each upload type.

Activity log

Activity shows the most recent 100 tracked events — currently logins, song creation/deletion, and member role changes — each with who did it and, for logins, the request's IP/browser/OS. This is a narrow slice of the app's activity, not a complete audit trail of every action.

Known rough edges

This guide documents the app exactly as it behaves today, including things that are still known gaps rather than fixed bugs:

- The main navigation bar has no responsive/mobile treatment. It's a single row that doesn't wrap or collapse into a menu on a narrow screen — as more admin links have been added over time (up to 7 for an admin account), it's increasingly likely to be cut off or overlap on a phone-width browser window. Every page's actual content is otherwise reasonably mobile-friendly.
